

How proud can Britain be of the Royal Navy's efforts to end the Atlantic Slave Trade in the 19th Century?

Worksheet 3 - Guidance and Template for Assignment

Practicalities:

- Choose a software package best suited to your expertise and availability: Power Point or Movie Maker
- Use the internet to research and collect a range of relevant images; create a file to store them
- Aim for about 12 slides (Power Point) or a movie that might play for 2 minutes each, running at a rate of 10 seconds per slide
- Use Worksheet 3's planning template to sketch out your main images and themes
- Use text as well as images to communicate your commentary
- Your presentation could feature some things to be proud of and some things to be ashamed of
- Save your final work on a memory stick or e-mail it to yourself so it can be retrieved easily at School

Work Targets – in order to do well in this assignment you must:

- Cover the West Africa Squadron and the Congo raid of 1875
- Make your references accurate
- Demonstrate that you have used the Resource sheets 1 and 2 to provide background information
- Show some balance – there should be some things to be proud of, and some to be ashamed of
- Make your presentation reflect your overall judgment on the enquiry question: How proud can Britain be of the Royal Navy's efforts to end the Atlantic Slave Trade in the 19th Century?

GOOD LUCK!

TTP After Abolition
How proud can Britain be of the Royal Navy's efforts to end the Atlantic Slave Trade in the 19th Century?

Worksheet 3 - Planning Template for Power Point Presentation/'Movie Maker'

Presentation Themes
1 Scene focus	2	3	4	5	6
7 Scene focus	8	9	10	11	12