

Department for International Development Information Management Assessment Report and Action Plan

I am pleased to champion the publication of a report by The National Archives on our approach to information management.

In November 2016 The National Archives carried out an assessment of the Department for International Development as part of the cross-government Information Management Assessment programme and reviewed how far we have come since their previous review in 2008.

I am glad to see that we have been assessed as good or satisfactory in most areas. I recognise that there are areas where we can do better. We will therefore develop an action plan to address these, notably by improving our information governance and the way we manage our information assets and risks.

Good information management is essential to the Department. We look forward to ongoing collaboration with The National Archives in developing and delivering on our plans.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Nick Dyer', with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Nick Dyer
Permanent Secretary
Department for International Development