ILFRACOMBE MUSEUM

Wilder Road, Ilfracombe, North Devon, EX34 8AF

01271 863541

This report arises from a survey of archives in museums on behalf of the Museums and Galleries Commission, with support from the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts, January - April 1995. (Museums and Archives, a Museums and Galleries Commission Report, researched by Clare Conybeare and Anita Travers) Ilfracombe Museum is an independent trust, which gained charitable status in 1975. It was originally founded in 1932, and occupies a late 19th century building, formerly a hotel laundry.

Collecting is eclectic, and by no means confined to Ilfracombe itself. Retired colonials have donated objects from around the world, and it holds the national collection of specimen bats. Its newscuttings and memorabilia include national events such as the General strike, the Festival of Britain, and Royal celebrations.

Probably the earliest and most attractive document displayed is a verification of a grant of arms to John Wood of Harstone, 1533. There are some 100 deeds, wills and other legal documents, family history collections and compilations, notably for the Dennis family, glass negatives, daguerrotypes, gramophone records and cine films on tourism. Business records include prescription ledgers (6) 1909-19, a solicitor's letter book 1914-19, and Score cemetery records. There are 200 newspapers, miscellaneous local government records, research notes, war memorabilia such as identity cards, ration books and clothing coupons, also savings books, recipe books, greetings cards, cigarette card collections and holiday scrapbooks.

Lists are by location within the museum. These, basically, were the loft and office store, under display cabinets, and on display. Photocopies were provided of sections of the list, and notes were taken where appropriate, summarised as follows.

A market charter with restored seal is on loan to North Devon Record Office, and overseers' accounts (8 vols) 1741-88, were transferred in 1981.

largely given over to newspapers: Ilfracombe Chronicle, and Ilfracombe Gazette and Observer, 1868-1953. Some have been filmed by the British Library and film copies provided, but there is no film reader. The newspapers have been partially indexed by a Manpower Services Scheme.

Display

There are a large number of photographs etc on the walls and in display cases. Display falls into three categories:

1. Photographs, posters, advertisements and ephemera shown throughout the museum. These are too numerous to describe here.
2. Document cabinet, of shallow wooden pull-out drawers, the documents visible under sealed glass. A photocopy of a typed list of contents is appended.
3. Wallmounted swing frames in the 'extension', mostly photographs and postcards, but some MSS. These are:
