NOTES ON THE WORKSOP ARCHIVE.

The main sources for the history of the college are Mr Beanland's book - 'Worksop College 1895 to 1955' ( B 1 ) - the School Magazine ( B 2,3 & 4 ) and the School Council minutes ( A 8 to A 12 ). Together with the large collection of material in the Edmond Room these give a full picture of the life and growth of Worksop over ninety years.

The papers of Henry Meynell ( B 38, 39 & 40 ) illustrate vividly the ideas of the promoters and their struggle to bring the College into existence. There are letters from churchmen, grandees and supporters and opponents of every kind. The many public meetings are fully covered by press reports, and there are minutes and comments upon the work of committees. Meynell's dealings with architects, first Carpenter and later Ingelow, and his correspondence with the builders show the great difficulties that had to be overcome on the way to the triumphant opening in 1895.

From its earliest days Worksop set out to give a broad education, as the records show. The Rules of the St. Cuthbert's College Union Society ( H 19 ) are dated 1897 and the minutes of the General Purposes Committee begin in the previous year ( L 1 ). The first was an umbrella body which admitted and controlled all school societies, and the second was the forerunner of the modern Games Committee. On both boys and masters sat together to develop and regulate school activities.

All archives contain remarkable survivals, and Worksop's collection can boast several of these. The A.F. Jenkins who in 1897 produced his drawings and verses might well have been surprised to see his 'Humours of School Life' ( H 18 ) in the Edmond Room to-day. School timetables seldom survive, but Worksop has its printed summer programme for 1900 intact. It takes us through from first rising to lights out with a full account of lessons, services, mealtimes and activities on the way. From 1941 there is a significant, not to say chilling, War Office letter addressed to the O.C. Worksop Contingent. He is required to report on the number of serviceable rifles in his armoury so that these may be handed over to the Army for national defence.

In the Edmond Room Worksop has a collection of which any school might be proud, and it is all due to the tireless work of Mr. Beanland.
